Mayor Dixon Celebrates Groundbreaking for Zeta Senior Activities Center

Baltimore, MD (June 5, 2008) – Mayor Sheila Dixon joined City Council President Stephanie Rawlings-Blake, Comptroller Joan Pratt, State’s Attorney Patricia Jessamy, Councilwoman Sharon Middleton, State Delegate Barbara Robinson and many others to celebrate the groundbreaking for the Zeta Senior Activities Center in Park Heights. At the ceremony, the Mayor paid tribute to the membership of the Alpha Zeta Chapter of the Zeta Phi Beta Sorority for working with such dedication to see the center through to fruition.

“Through hard work and determination, you have brought your 10-year-old dream to reality,” Mayor Dixon said. “A much-needed senior activities center will soon go up at this location, thanks to you.”

Joining Mayor Dixon at event, which was held at the Howard P. Rawlings Community Building, were Dr. Earnestine T. McCloud, president of the Alpha Zeta Chapter, Merlene E. Adair, co-project coordinator of the Zeta Senior Activities Center, and Estella Cage, chairwoman of the Myrtle Tyler Faithful Fund Inc.

Members of Alpha Zeta said the goal of their effort, now on the brink of realization, was to help produce a better community and better way of life for the senior citizens of the Park Heights area.
